LETTERS FROM GEN. WALKER.

By the arrival of the Illinois from Aspinwall, we receive full particulars of the capitulation of Gen. WALKER and the close of the Nicaraguan war.

As already announced, Gen. WALKER had left Aspinwall for New-Orleans, where he arrived on Wednesday. Among the passengers by the Illinois to this port were Gen. HENNINGSEN and Col. TITUS.

Our correspondent, whose letters will be found below, gives highly interesting details of the last passage in Rivas, and of the negotiations between Capt. DAVIS and WALKER, which finally led to the fillibuster surrender.

On the 5th of May, 162 guns announced to the people of San José, Costa Rica, the occupation of Rivas by the Allies.

Gen. MORA, with his division of the army was expected at San José on the 12th. Great preparations were being made to give him an enthusiastic reception.

The Occidental gives all due credit to Capt. DAVIS for his humane interference to save the lives of WALKER and his followers, and also speaks in the highest credit of his noble conduct.

OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

PANAMA, Tuesday, May 19, 1857.

"WALKER has plenty of food and supplies, and is now in a better position than ever." This stereotyped lie of WALKER's friends, and of the newspapers in his interest, is true for once. For, to-day, he is comfortably ensconced on the United States sloop-of-war St. Mary's, in the harbor of Panama, where he has as much as he can eat, and "is perfectly secure from any attacks," except those of his own conscience.

In my letter of April 29, in some speculations as to the fate of WALKER in the closing scenes at Rivas, which I wrote you in haste, I probably give you by the following steamer, I said that the only possibility of his escape, was that Commander DAVIS, at the last moment, might intervene with the Allies for his life, and the lives of his few followers. This speculation has become fact. WALKER having been reduced to fifty men and officers on the 30th of April, surrendered with all his force on the 1st day of May, to Commander DAVIS, by and with the consent of General MORA, Commander-in-Chief of the Allies. He embarked the same day, with 16 of his officers, on board the St. Mary's, sailed on the 5th, and on the 17th, arrived in the port of Panama.

You will recollect that your last advices from WALKER were up to 12th April, in the shape of a rumor that he was confined to only two houses with all his force, and that he could hold out but a few days longer. This was not fully correct.

On the 4th of April, WALKER burned all the buildings except those composing the heart of the city, which he could defend.

On the 11th of April, the Allies attacked WALKER's fortifications, and after great loss, fell back to their lines. They threw an immense number of ball into the city, and endeavored to get possession of it by assault. WALKER claims that they lost 500 killed, and 70 prisoners, who fell into his hands, while his own loss was only two killed. The Crocodile de Costa Rica speaks of this battle as an unfortunate one for the Allies, and adds: "The loss was grave on both sides."

From this time up to the 27th April, there does not appear to have been much fighting, but deserters were continually going over to the Allies. On the 27th, 70 of WALKER's men and 17 officers deserted to the Allies, just as the firing recommenced upon the city. On the 29th, the firing against the city was continued. On the 30th, it was augmented.

On the 30th, Commander DAVIS, of the United States sloop-of-war St. Mary's, appeared in the allied camp, and commenced negotiations with Gen. MORA for the surrender of WALKER and the remnant of his force. At this time the force of MORA besieging the city amounted to over 2,500 men. I have been favored with copies of the official papers of the negotiations which resulted in the capitulation of WALKER, and will give you the substance of them in regular order:

No. 1—Dated April 30, in the camp of the allies, from Commander DAVIS to Gen. WALKER—Informs him that he is perfectly aware of his position, and offers, by authority from Gen. MORA, to guarantee his personal safety, and the lives and safety of all under his command, if he and they will quit the country. Commander DAVIS also offers to take Gen. WALKER to Panama in the St. Mary's, and notifies him that Gen. MORA consents to suspend hostilities.

No. 2—Dated at Rivas, April 30.—Gen. WALKER writes to Commander DAVIS that his propositions are too vague, and asks for a personal interview.

No. 3—Dated April 30, Commander DAVIS is surprised that Gen. WALKER finds his propositions to be vague. He now asks him to abandon his enterprise, and leave the country, pledging himself for the safety of all present in Rivas, without exception, but declined the personal interview.

No. 4—Dated April 30, Gen. WALKER writes to Commander DAVIS that he agrees to suspend hostilities until notified by Commander DAVIS that they are to resume them. He wishes Commander DAVIS to inform Gen. MORA that he considers hostilities to his men to desert, as acts of hostility. He proposes to send two officers to Commander DAVIS to treat, if they can have safe conduct.

No. 5—Dated April 30, Commander DAVIS sends safe conduct for the two officers.

No. 6—Dated April 30, Gen. WALKER to Commander DAVIS, names Brigadier-General HENNINGSEN and Col. JOHN P. WATERS, as the persons who are authorized to negotiate.

No. 7 is an agreement entered into between Gen. WALKER and Commander DAVIS, in accordance with the suggestions of the latter, as follows:

RIVAS, Friday, May 1, 1857.

An agreement is hereby entered into between Gen. WM. WALKER on the one part, and Commander CHAS. H. DAVIS, of the United States Navy, on the other part, and of which the stipulations are as follows:

WALKER, with 16 officers of his staff, shall march out of Rivas with their side-arms, pistols, horses, and personal baggage, under the guarantee of said Commander DAVIS, of the United States Navy, that they shall not be molested by the enemy, and shall be allowed to embark on board the United States vessel-of-war St. Mary's, in the harbor of San Juan del Sur, the said Commander DAVIS undertaking to transport them safely on the St. Mary's to Panama.

Second—The officers of Gen. WALKER's army shall march out of Rivas, with their side-arms, under the guarantee and protection of Commander DAVIS, who undertakes to see them safely transported to Panama in charge of a United States officer.

Third—The private and non-commissioned officers, citizens, and employes of departments, wounded or sick, shall be surrendered, with their arms, to Gen. DAVIS, or one of his officers, and placed under his protection and control, he pledging himself to have them safely transported to Panama, in charge of a United States officer, in separate vessels from the deserters from the ranks, and without being brought into contact with them.

Fourth—Gen. DAVIS undertakes to obtain guarantees, and hereby does guarantee, that all natives of Nicaragua or Central America now in Rivas, and surrendered to the protection of Com. DAVIS, shall be allowed to reside in Nicaragua and be protected in life and property.

Fifth—It is agreed that such officers as have wives and families in San Juan del Sur, shall be allowed to remain there under protection of the United States Consul till an opportunity offers of embarking for Panama or San Francisco.

General WALKER and Commander DAVIS mutually pledge themselves to each other that this agreement shall be executed in good faith.

WM. WALKER.
CHAS. HENRY DAVIS,
Commander United States Navy.

Present and acting—C. F. Henningsen, John T. Waters, J. Winthrop Fayler.

No. 9—Dated May 2, Four Corners, camp of the allies, is a letter from Commander DAVIS to General MORA, informing him that Rivas and all General WALKER's ammunition of war is his disposal.

No. 10—Dated at San Juan del Sur, May 2, is a letter from Commander DAVIS to Lieut. MAURY, of the St. Mary's, ordering him to take the Granada, WALKER's war steamer, by force, if necessary, after informing Captain PAGNOUX of the loss of national character his schooner has sustained.

No. 11 is as follows:

SAN JUAN DEL SUR, May 2, 1857.

CAPTAIN PAGNOUX: Deliver the Granada to the United States. WM. WALKER.

No. 12—Dated San Juan del Sur, May 2, is a letter from Commander DAVIS to Gen. MORA, telling him he is satisfied the claim of Nicaragua to the war-schooner Granada is just, and that he is ready to deliver her over. Commander DAVIS asks Gen. MORA to make arrangements for the transportation of the officers and crew to the United States.

No. 14—Dated San Juan del Sur, May 2, is an order to Lieut. MAURY to transfer the Granada to Gen. ESTRADA, Commander of the division of the allies at San Juan del Sur.

No. 14—Dated San Juan del Sur, May 2, is a letter from Commander DAVIS to Lieut. MCCORKLE, of the St. Mary's, ordering him to proceed to Virgin Bay, take Gen. WALKER's men in charge, and proceed to PANAMA by such route as Gen. MORA shall direct, advising him that no deserters are to accompany the party.

No. 15—Dated Rivas, May 2, is a letter from Gen. MORA to Commander DAVIS, informing him that he has received orders to march and fortify points on the San Juan River—that he leaves Gen. OLAVIA in charge, with instructions to remove the fortifications with all parties, and notifying Com. D. that Gen. WALKER had not complied with the terms of the capitulation, he and HENNINGSEN having mutilated the guns, and thrown the powder into wells.

No. 16—Dated San Juan del Sur, May 4, is a letter from Commander DAVIS to General CANAS, thanking him for his courtesy in all the negotiations, for his humanity to prisoners, and to the sick and wounded, and notifying him that he will leave Dr. ROSTROM in charge of the hospitals.

No. 17—Dated on board the sloop of war St. Mary's, May 14, is a letter from Commander DAVIS to Commodore MERVINE, of the flag ship Independence at this port, expressing the great gratification he experienced in witnessing General CANAS' humane conduct, in having immediately after the capitulation sent provisions and all necessaries to the sick and wounded; and informing Commodore MERVINE that he left sixty sick and wounded in the hospitals, and twenty in private houses.

The following is the General Order issued by Gen. WALKER to his troops after the capitulation. You will observe the phrase, "In parting for the present," etc., in the document.

HEAD QUARTERS OF THE ARMY, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, RIVAS, Friday, May 1, 1857.

General Order, No. 59.—The Commander-in-Chief, in communicating to the Army the following agreement, thinks it proper to state that he entered into it on the solemn assurance from Captain DAVIS, that Col. LOCKRIDGE, with his whole command, had left the San Juan River for the United States.

In parting, for the present, with the brave comrades who have adhered to our course through evil as well as good report, the Commander-in-Chief desires to return his deep and heartfelt thanks to the officers and soldiers under his command.

Reduced to our present condition by the cowardice of some, the incapacity of others, and the treachery of many, the army has yet written a page of American history, which it is impossible to forget or erase. From the future, if not from the present, we may expect just judgment. WM. WALKER.

The following is a correct list of the officers of WALKER's staff, now on board the St. Mary's:

Gen. Wm. Walker, Gen. C. F. Henningsen, Col. Bruno Natzmer, Col. John P. Waters, Lieut.-Col. Henry, Lieut.-Col. Rogers, Lieut.-Col. Tucker, Brevet Lieut.-Col. Swingle, Major Hoof, Captains West, Williamson, McKechen, Pagnoux, (schooner Granada,) Hawkins; Lieutenants Bacon, McMichael, Brady; Drs. Kellum, McAlemy; Orderly Frederick Romer.

When Gen. WALKER surrendered he had what he calculated as four days' provisions, viz.: two bulls, two horses and three mules.

The fact that only 60 of WALKER's men remained sick at Rivas at the capitulation shows that, at least, 100 must have died within a few days from neglect and starvation, as the number, when WALKER commenced to eat dogs and mule meat, amounted to 170. When Gen. CANAS entered the hospital he was perfectly horror struck with the destitution and misery of the sufferers. He immediately ordered ventilation, clean linen, medicines, and even luxuries to the patients.

The number of men who surrendered with arms in their hands was 240. These men, under charge of Lieut. MCCORKLE, of the St. Mary's, it was understood, were to be marched to Liberia, taken across the Gulf of Nicoya to Punta Arenas, Costa Rica, and from thence transported in the Panama to Panama. The Panama, however, arrived this morning without any of this force, and Capt. Dow brings no reliable news of their whereabouts. I questioned a gentleman of my acquaintance from Salvador, who was on the Panama, as to whether they would be forwarded on her next trip. His reply was: "No, the Government of Costa Rica has no money to waste in any such expense." Some say that they have gone by way of the lake and river to Greytown, but I think there can be no doubt they were on their way to Costa Rica. Whether they will be forwarded is a case of quien sabe.

Those who have any sympathy for Gen. WALKER in his fall, unless they are lost to even the common sentiments of humanity, will have their sympathy somewhat modified on becoming acquainted with the following facts, which I have from a high official source, a gentleman who cannot be mistaken in what he relates: On the 30th day of May, while General WALKER, without the knowledge of his men, was negotiating his capitulation, knowing that he was to surrender the next day, one of his soldiers, contrary to a general order, went outside of his lines. He shortly after returned, he having only gone out to get a bottle of aguardiente. WALKER called him up, when he acknowledged his fault, and prayed for forgiveness. "If you have any message to send to your friends," said WALKER, in his mild, but sarcastic way, "you had better prepare it, for at sundown you die." Punctually at sunset a platoon of soldiers was drawn up for the execution, and just as the order was given to fire, the soldier appealed to his comrades: "Boys, you wouldn't shoot a fellow-soldier for such a thing as that, would you?" They raised their rifles and fired over his head. The poor fellow broke and ran, when he was brought to his knees by Lieut. Col. ROGERS, an Irishman, who figures in the list I send you, by a pistol shot. Stepping up to the man while in this position, ROGERS placed his revolver at his forehead and blew out his brains! May be there isn't a hell. There ought to be, if there is not.

Gen. WALKER and some of his officers have conducted themselves in the most insolent manner towards Com. DAVIS and Com. MERVINE, notwithstanding the former saved their lives, and has treated them in the humanest way on board the St. Mary's. WALKER even charges Com. DAVIS with having induced his men to desert him, and with unjustly turning over his schooner to the allies. Indeed, his insolence is so great that Com. DAVIS does not enter his own cabin, to which he kindly invited WALKER on his coming on board at San Juan del Sur. High officers of the fleet give me this information.

Yesterday, Sunday, Com. MERVINE, feeling bound to see these officers shipped to the United States, sent a very polite message to Gen. WALKER, asking him how many of his staff were able and willing to pay their own passage to the States? "When I need an agent I will appoint one," replied WALKER. Com. MERVINE then sent for Gen. HENNINGSEN, whom he found to be a well bred gentleman in his manners, and put the same question to him. Gen. H. could not say, as it was rather a delicate question for him to broach to his fellow-officers. "Well," replied Com. MERVINE, "as many as are of Gen. WALKER's way of thinking will remain on board my ship, until I get ready to go to San Francisco, when I shall take him and them to that port." On Gen. H. communicating this threat to Gen. WALKER, he got down from his high horse, and said that himself and Gen. H. would pay their own passage, but as to the others he could say nothing.

Com. MERVINE informs me that he shall send the whole across the road to-morrow, under charge of a file of Marines, who will not quit them until the wheels are moving the steamer out of the harbor.

There are some three or four hundred of WALKER's men in Costa Rica, besides the 240 who surrendered last at Rivas. Many of them were enlisting in the Costa Rican army. Others were being gathered at San José de Costa Rica, to be sent to Greytown, by way of the Serapiqui river. Some say that they go to take up lands by permission of Costa Rica, on the Serapiqui. In fact, I can get but little reliable in relation to the deserters.

Col. MCDONALD, formerly Agent of the steamers at San Juan del Sur, and more or less in WALKER's service, sought the protection of the St. Mary's, and after living on board of her six weeks at San Juan, was brought by Capt. DAVIS to Panama, on the same terms as the others. Having broken his parole not to go on shore, Gen. DAVIS sent a Lieutenant with some Marines into town to arrest him and bring him on board. He, however, claimed to be a British subject, upon which Com. MERVINE allowed him to escape.

Col. CAYCOE, WALKER's Q. M. General, who was reported by the Costa Rican papers sometime since to have deserted, remained with WALKER up to the last, and then joined the allied army.

"Col. TITUS, the Kansas Bully, who ran away from Castillo at the head of 250 men when his enemy had only 70, joined WALKER at Rivas, but deserted some five or six days before the final break up. He has gained a noble reputation as a warrior truly.

Col. CARRY held Greytown, according to information by the British steamer Dee, at last dates, with 200 men.

The allies' objection to the escape of WALKER was the only difficulty that Gen. DAVIS had in his negotiations. His persistency and their own humanity finally got the best of the argument, and his life was saved.

This evening the Governor of Panama having verbally expressed a fear that there might be some disturbance at the railroad station on the departure of WALKER, Com. MERVINE addressed the former a note, offering to send on shore a strong guard of Marines, if deemed necessary. Of course the Governor will not consent.

The Railroad Company's steamer Panama, Capt. J. H. DOW, arrived here this morning, having left Punta Arenas de Costa Rica on the 14th instant. She brings 5,000 hides, 9,200 bags of coffee, some indigo, cochineal, sugar, cigars, &c., and 25 passengers.

Departure of General Walker for the United States.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

ASPINWALL, Wednesday, May 20, 1857.

Gen. WALKER and officers left on the Granada at 5 o'clock for New-Orleans, Com. MERVINE sent him on shore under a guard of a file of marines, who came over with him on the same car. There was no appearance of restraint however. The people gathered in large numbers at the Panama dépôt to get a sight of the lion, but all was orderly and quiet.

In Costa Rica the people were celebrating their triumph by firing cannon, rockets, illuminations, and every other demonstration of joy.

Henningsen's Account of the War.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

ASPINWALL, Wednesday, May 20, 1857.

I inclose you "Statistics of WALKER's Campaign," furnished me by Brigadier-General HENNINGSEN, of WALKER's army, through the United States Consul at Panama. It is not valuable to those who are in search of the real facts, as everything is much exaggerated in favor of WALKER, and against the Allies. To say, for instance, that WALKER had to contend against 8,000 Costa Ricans, in the first nine months after the 29th June, 1856, is an unpardonable misstatement, because everybody knows better. That WALKER has received, including those on the River, at least, 5,000 men is beyond question. That the Allies have neither had more than half the men in arms this HENNINGSEN states, or lost half the number he estimates they have, is equally beyond cavil. But due allowance must be made for the anxiety General HENNINGSEN has to make a good stay under defeat, and also for the errors natural to one who was so much interested they should be truths as he is. If you deduct one-half all through for General H.'s glorification of WALKER and himself, and also one half from the number and losses of the Allies all through, the thing will be as nearly correct as can be arrived at. I submit the statement to you without further comment, as every one conversant with the facts of the fillibuster war will be able to point out its exaggerations. F. W. R.

STATISTICS OF WALKER'S CAMPAIGN.

BY C. F. HENNINGSEN.

The first period may be reckoned from the 29th of June, 1855, comprising nine months, during which time he fought against 4,800 men, namely: 1,800 servilles, and 3,000 Costa Ricans. The result leaving him (after a loss in round numbers of 200 men in killed and wounded, and 1,000 of theirs) master of the soil of Nicaragua.

SECOND PERIOD.

The Second Period may be reckoned from 1st September, 1856, to Dec. 12, of that year, terminating with the evacuation of Granada. During this time, he had to contend against about 7,000 men of the native and allied army—the result being that with a loss of 541 killed and wounded on his part, and of 2,700 killed and wounded on the part of the allies. At the end of December this force was reduced to 1,600 men, thinned every day by desertion. In fact, but for the capture of the lake and river steamers, the war might have been considered virtually decided.

THIRD PERIOD.

The third period may be reckoned from the 25th of January, 1857, to the 1st of May, 1857, which terminated the siege of Rivas, and during which time WALKER had contended with over 6,000 of the enemy, with a loss to his force of 300 killed and wounded, and between 2,000 and 2,500 to that of the allies.

Total.....				289	1100

Force of WALKER from the time of his landing to the 1st of May, 1857, nearly two years, exclusive of LOCKRIDGE's force, 9,518. Total force of the Allies, exclusive of 1,200 Costa Ricans, if, as alleged, on the river, 18,600. Total killed and wounded of WALKER's force, 850. Total Allies killed and wounded, 5,860.

To this force of 9,518 men, the total force WALKER had under arms during two years, since his landing in the country, it is hardly necessary to add the armed citizens who fought at Granada and Rivas, because they are, with a score of exceptions, discharged soldiers, and it must be borne in mind that if many wounded died, a large proportion of the wounded recovered. It is estimated that during two years, of 9,500 men enlisted or holding commissions, about 1,000 were killed or died of their wounds or sickness, about 700 deserted, 250 were discharged, 485 were at Rivas on the 1st of May, and 60 surrendered or escaped down the river. Total 2,485, leaving 58 unaccounted for.

It will be perceived from these tables, which are substantially correct, whatever errors they contain being in favor of the Allies, that this has been no ordinary contest, either as regards the obstinacy with which WALKER's men fought, or the odds against which they were pitted. And to enable your readers to discern that this has been no holiday-work, it will suffice to point out that in proportion to the number engaged, the loss of the Americans averages more than double that inflicted in the battles of Mexico by Santa Anna, and that WALKER's men engaged against the average of double the disparity of force which the United States armies had to contend against in Mexico. Those readers who will take the trouble to figure out the matter, will discover that the loss was, for instance, at Rivas, 11th April, 24 per cent.; at Massaya, Nov. 13, 33 per cent.; at Granada, 27 per cent.; at St. George, in the first battle, 22 per cent.; in the last, 18 per cent. Whereas, the first day's battle in Monterey, in Mexico, gives under 9 per cent.

They will further discern that the average fighting in Nicaragua has been, all through, rather more bloody than the memorable contest of Lundy's Lane. When it is considered that about 1,800 men of WALKER's army have done the real fighting, it may be admitted that they have redeemed the weakness or the shame of those who would not face prolonged endurance or continued danger.

At Jocote, March 4, by the incapacity of Gen. SANDERS, 125 men, whom he commanded, gave way before 200 of the enemy. The wounded which he abandoned were slaughtered. His total loss was 37 men. This was called "Jocote race."

On the 16th March, Gen. WALKER marched to San Jorge with 400 men, 2 six-pounders, 1 howitzer, and 4 mortars, and approached within 400 yards and fired on the place for near two hours, expending about 200 shot and shell.

By this fire the enemy were driven out of San Jorge, except the church, where they left a small guard for the wounded. One portion of their force retired back of the town—the remainder, favored by the broken ground, brush and plantain patches, and numbering over 2,000 men, made a fierce attack, which lasted about four hours, on Gen. WALKER's position, which, half the time, was attacked on three sides at once. Finally, all these attempts having been repulsed, Gen. WALKER fired forty shots more on the place, with the view to show that he had maintained his ground, as there was nobody in it. It was now discovered that the enemy had got between Gen. WALKER and RIVAS, where, in the hollow roads and behind cactus hedges, they hoped to impede his return, or at least to stop his heavy guns, mortars, wagons and wounded. They were, however, dispersed without trouble or loss, till close to Rivas, where, on one road they had strongly barricaded a house at the Cuatro Esquinas.

On this road, one gun, a wagon and some wounded were wedged in on a hollow road, and almost as much loss was experienced in rash attempts to pass this house (which Gen. WALKER twice rode by) as during the whole fight at San Jorge.

Meanwhile Gen. HENNINGSEN, who had brought up the rear guard in excellent order, dispatched part of this force with the two guns (which had been easily cleared) into Rivas. Finally, as night was coming on, the other guns and wagons were driven through a plantain patch and brought into Rivas about day-break. The total loss of WALKER's force was 75 killed and wounded. The loss of the enemy is ascertained to have been 400 killed and wounded, probably much more, as nearly 600 rounds were fired from WALKER's guns.

On the 23d of March 2,500 men attacked Rivas. They nearly surprised, and had half out through the doors of the hospital, when discovered. They attacked from three sides with great fierceness for about three hours. On three points they succeeded in occupying houses outside the barricades. On one point they brought up a five-pound gun, which was captured, together with an Italian Lieutenant-Colonel commanding it, the same who was on board of the Costa Rica brig blown up by FAYSSOUX. The enemy were finally driven out of all these houses, leaving about 30 prisoners, one gun, and 6,000 cartridges in the hands of WALKER.

Though the enemy had been all the morning removing their dead, seventy bodies were buried that afternoon by the garrison; and two wells, one full and the other half filled with dead, were discovered two days after.

The enemy at one time occupied half the house in which Major TUCKER's men were quartered, and 20 were here taken prisoners by him. The total loss of the enemy was ascertained to be over 400 men; that of WALKER 19 killed and wounded.

The next attack was on the 4th of April. An hour before daylight, 150 Costa Ricans, on the information of deserters, gained the lower plaza and occupied nearly a whole row of houses. They again attacked three sides of the town, and succeeded in occupying some huts, being within a thin partition of Captain MCELHOSE's quarters on the main street.

General HENNINGSEN brought three guns to bear, one in front, one on the side, and one in the rear of the said house of the Plaza, and Captain BUCHANAN's company charging on them, 73 including three officers surrendered, the rest having stampeded. One of the guns was then sent to the relief of Captain MCELHOSE, and the enemy were then rapidly driven back. These and St. Ursula were the serious points of attack, on all others they had been repulsed, and by 9 o'clock A. M., had abandoned the field, leaving 130 bodies for WALKER's men to bury, and 13 prisoners, and 25 wounded in his hands. One hundred more dead were seen laid out at the Cuatro Esquinas, and 225 wounded were counted. This, however, was only part of their loss, which, besides prisoners, cannot be computed at less than 600 men. The total force of the enemy was 2,600 men. WALKER's loss was 16 killed and wounded, and 55 from the 23d of March, when the enemy first opened fire with a 24-pound gun, to the 1st of May.

The enemy attempted to batter Rivas with two 24-pounders, one howitzer and four 5-pound guns, one of which was taken on the 23d of March.

Their 24-pound shot, of which they fired near 500 into Rivas, strange to say, only killed one man. (Lieut. MOORE.) and wounded another by falling beam. (Col. HENRY.) Capt. MANN was killed by a 5-pound shot, and the roofs of the houses suffered considerably.

Some of these 24 pound shot, together with all the church bells and another gun, taken when WALKER entered Rivas in December last, were cast into 6-pound balls and fired back.

When Rivas was surrendered to Capt. DAVIS, the trunnions of all the guns had been broken off and all the ammunition destroyed.

Letters from Gen. Walker—Interesting Accounts of Recent Engagements.

From the San Francisco Herald.

By the permission of Mr. EDMUND RANDOLPH we are enabled to lay before our readers, this morning, the following narrative of recent events in Nicaragua, from the pen of Gen. WALKER himself. From this letter, devoid as it is of any attempt either at exaggeration or concealment, an accurate idea of the present condition of things in Nicaragua can be formed. It will be read with interest:

RIVAS, March 22, 1857.

MY DEAR RANDOLPH: CRITTENDEN wrote to me that * * * had been a very useful man in California; therefore I sent him back with instructions to report faithfully and accurately. I did not know his propensity to lie, or I should have sent some one else. This time I shall write, and not trust to any one. * * * * * * * * *

Since the enemy came into this Department, we have never had more than 500 men for marching. On the first of January, the aggregate of the army was upwards of 1,000, including sick, wounded, and officers on furlough. Now it amounts (Ordnance, Commissary's, Quartermaster's etc. Departments,) to something over 700—for marching, 400. The diminution is due almost entirely to desertion and the bills of the enemy—very little to fever or any form of disease.

Besides the fight at Obraje—which, as the Costa Rica papers show, did more damage to the enemy than I thought for—we have four times attacked them at San Jorge, and have had one action on the plains near Jocote. During that time, the enemy had several times received reinforcements. Just before we attacked them last, they had from five to six hundred men from Punta Arenas through Guanacaste. They have never attempted to land any men at San Juan del Sur since the ill-fated expedition of the "Once de Abril."

Concerning the action at Obraje, and the first and second attacks on San Jorge, you are already informed. I supposed that * * * would inform you that before he left we gave them a cannonade of about one hundred rounds, but he does not appear to have done so, and I see nothing of this in the papers. This cannonade depressed the enemy, who did not venture to come out to attack us; but our supply of round shot (6 lb.) was limited, and we retired. Since then, we have been casting 6 lb. shot, and our cupola for smelting is now in operation. This, with the 500 shot CRITTENDEN sent, assists us materially.

After our first cannonade of San Jorge, I mounted fifty or sixty men, and thus raised the Ranger force to 110 or 120. For some days they secured the neighborhood and kept the enemy close to San Jorge. But they began to desert; one whole company—FARRELL's—going off in two detachments. This company was made up of Stockton gamblers, who did pretty well in action, but had not moral courage to bear up against the terrible reports put in circulation by the natives.

About the time the Sierra Nevada was expected, I sent forty Rangers to San Juan del Sur, under the orders of Col. CAYCOE. The day they were to return, I got news that the enemy—about 300 strong—were at or near Jocote. I accordingly sent General SANDERS, with about 120 rides, to convoy Jocote and accompany with Col. CAYCOE. On the road, some few miles this side of Jocote, he met the enemy, from 200 to 250 strong. Soon after the fire opened, Captains HERMIT and GORWAY, whose companies were deployed in advance, were killed; a panic seized their men and spread rapidly to the rest of the command, and it was, according to all accounts, impossible to rally the men. Eighteen were left on the field—most of these wounded were left in the night, and some eight or ten wounded were brought in. What makes the matter worse, CAYCOE had met the enemy on the Transit and got the better of them, so that they were probably in retreat to San Jorge when SANDERS met them. This happened on or about the 4th of March.

Of course this affair had no tendency to check desertion, which was already rapid, and fomented by the proclamations and addresses the enemy found means to scatter in our camp. On the 7th, however, Captain SPRAGUE arrived with 70 men, and on the next day I addressed the whole force in the Plaza. The desertion was stopped, and the army returned to a healthy state.

The affair at Jocote had depressed the courage of the men, and impaired their confidence in each other; but on the 16th—this day a week ago—I thought their spirits good enough to hazard another attack. Accordingly, on Monday morning, I marched with two sixes and a 12 pound howitzer, 4 mortars, about 400 rounds of 6 pound shot, and 96 shells, supported by men. We opened fire about 7 A. M., at a distance of about 400 yards; and after giving them 120 or 130 rounds of balls, opened with the shells. This soon forced them to come out of the town and attack us. They came out, I think, some 1,500 or 1,600 strong, attacking us vigorously on all sides. Our men met them well—let them come up close—and drove them back with great slaughter. We kept up our cannonade on the town, so that they did not venture to return. About 8 P. M. I ascertained that nearly their whole force was scattered along the road to Rivas, in order to prevent us, as they said, from returning. Forming, then, the column with our wounded and ammunition in the centre, I took the head of the column and kept the advance companies at a charge all the way to Rivas, driving the enemy from all the points they occupied on the road, and scattering them in all directions.

Our loss in this action was 14 killed and 30 wounded, most of the latter slightly. By the enemy's own account they have lost from 400 to 600. The reports make these killed; so I think their loss may very safely be put at from 300 to 400 killed and wounded. Besides these the roads have been covered with deserters north and south. On the night of the 19th, 83 Costa Rican deserters passed through Virgin on their way home.

Altogether, I think this last blow is as severe as any we have given them since we have been in the country. It has raised the courage of our own men; I never saw them fight better than they did last Monday. In addition to this, while we were at San Jorge, and this place was in the keeping of the departments, citizens and hospital-patients, a number of the poor natives of the neighborhood came in and asked for arms. A number of the natives, too, have been voluntarily bringing in to us hogs and cattle during the week. These facts are significant, for they show how the natives think the war is going.

Considering the numbers which have been brought against us in this war, it is remarkable that so many of the poorer class of people have adhered to us in all reverses of fortune. Ignorant as they are of the resources and the feelings and sympathies on which we rely for support from the United States, their confidence in our power is due to the constancy with which we have borne up against famine, pestilence and the thousands the Allies have sent against us. Their hatred, too, to forced military service and their desire for quiet, tranquil labor makes their sympathies with us. I believe we can say with truth and just pride that, in spite of the calumnies our enemies have spread—in spite of the stories about civil and religious Slavery—that we have a large majority of the working people in our favor. Especially is it true in this department, where the transit has increased their little trade and made them familiar with the advantages to be derived from the Americans.

Concerning matters on the river, you will receive by the Sierra Nevada all the news I have up to the present time. The Orizaba will bring later advices, although not later than the 20th, as the Tennessee does not, I understand, touch at San Juan del Norte. My impression is, that LOCKRIDGE will be here in a few days, either by way of Chontales or along the southern shore of the lake; that is, if he is not able to get a steamer. My side, Major HALDEMAN, left here for San Juan del Norte with such instructions as lead me to expect LOCKRIDGE soon. Before the Orizaba returns I may have news direct from the river; if so, I will send it to you.

You will see that our ports are made free. This *will, I think, facilitate the settlement of the Mos*quite question in a manner more honorable to Nicaragua than was proposed by the Clarendon-Dallas treaty.

This letter is written merely to give you some idea of events up to this date. Yours, truly,

WM. WALKER.

MR. EDMUND RANDOLPH.

MONDAY, March 23d.

P. S.—While writing the foregoing the enemy were keeping up a carronade—very slow—with a 24 pounder, from a hill 1,200 or 1,400 yards distant. Their camp was situated on the Hacienda of Cuatro Esquinas, in the direction of San Jorge, while at the same time they barricaded on the Obraje road, on the brow of a hill about 200 yards from our pickets.

Yesterday afternoon and evening, the women who have been friendly to the enemy packed up and left. This was suspicious and foreboded a general attack. The officers on duty for the day were ordered to be vigilant during the night, and two general and two field-officers were ordered to be up in turn. About daylight, an aide called me, saying that the hospital—the Malleone house on the hill—was attacked in the rear. A company was ordered to the hospital, and the enemy was repulsed with the loss of an officer and 6 or 8 killed and a number wounded. The Rifles hardly caused on the side of the hospital, when the whole front and right flank, as well as a portion of the rear of our camp, were assailed by the enemy. They got into some of the houses, and commenced very industriously to throw up barricades; but they were finally driven from all their positions, and repulsed with a loss—as far as I can judge from the dead and wounded left behind—of between 300 and 400. They also lost a four pound piece taken by us, as well as 46 or 70 English Minie muskets, and some 5,000 cartridges—excellent British powder in the last.

One of the wounded taken prisoner is an Italian, who came out under the auspices of the Accessory Transit Company, in July, 1855, for the defence of Castillo and the river frontier. He deserted after the treaty of the 23d of October, 1855, and went to Costa Rica; was blown up on the Once de Abril, and picked up by Captain FAYSSOUX. After several months service in the chain-gang here, he knocked a careless sentry on the head and escaped. He was therefore, an officer of confidence with the Costa Ricans, and had charge of two four-pound pieces in the action. From him I gather some interesting details. Heavy we were attacked this morning by upwards of 2,000 men, under JOSE JOAQUIN MORA. It appears that the 500 or 600 men who left San José on the 2d instant, did not arrive at San Jorge until last Wednesday, two days after our cannonade. Since then J. J. MORA came from San Carlos with 500 more, leaving TEHEDAS SALAZAR, (the greatest coward in Nicaragua,) in charge of that post. From all accounts SALAZAR could not have with him more than 100 men; and MORA brought with him the 24 pound gun from San Carlos. I, therefore, conjecture that by this time LOCKRI

News from California.

ADJOURNMENT OF THE STATE LEGISLATURE—PASSAGE OF IMPORTANT ACTS—THE STATE INDEBTEDNESS—MINING AND AGRICULTURAL INTELLIGENCE—WAGON-ROADS ACROSS THE SIERRA NEVADA.

Our advices from San Francisco are to the 5th of of May inclusive.

The Eighth Legislature adjourned sine die at meridian of the 30th ultimo, after a session of four months. Although two hundred and eighty bills were passed, but very few of them were of a general character, and fewer still will prove of ultimate benefit to the State. The most important measures are those submitting to the people the question of voting for or against a Convention to revise the Constitution, and the Revenue Act; the election of two United States Senators; the impeachment and conviction of HENRY BATES, late State Treasurer; the impeachment and acquittal of G. W. WHITMAN, Comptroller of the State, sum up pretty much all of other than ordinary legislative business. It is generally conceded that the Legislature was composed of a better class of men than have too frequently heretofore represented the people. The Alta California of the 5th, speaking of some of the more important measures that have passed the Legislature, says:

"The mail which leaves for the Atlantic to-day will convey the gratifying intelligence that the Legislature has at last passed a bill—which has received the signature of the Governor—submitting directly to the people, at the next general election, the question of repudiation, or settlement of the State indebtedness, declared by the Supreme Court to have been unconstitutionally created. In the early stages of the session we urged upon the members of the Legislature the immediate adoption of such a measure, as it would necessarily have had the effect to preserve, at least to a certain extent, our credit in the East, and might have saved many of the bondholders the pecuniary sacrifices they have been required to make, in the sale of the bonds at the low figure to which they have been reduced on account of the Supreme Court's decision, and the continued neglect of the Legislature to provide for taking the sense of the people upon the question of their adoption or repudiation. As it is, we think we can assure our friends at the East, as we have already said, that California will not repudiate. The question will not come to a vote until the general election in September, and, although it is possible and probable, that individual demagogues, seeking an ephemeral popularity among our floating population, may attempt to raise an advocacy of the principle of repudiation the means of obtaining votes, we have no idea that any degree of success will be attained by them; and we know that no political party, with any hope of success, would dare to make the issue before the people in favor of repudiation. We again say, that we think we can safely assure the absent holders of our securities, that they need have no fear but that they will receive the indorsement of the people. A Revenue bill has been passed, by the terms of which ample provision is made for the current expenses of government, and when the present indebtedness is provided for, we do not believe there will be any occasion in the future for us to exceed the amount of $300,000, to which we are limited by the Constitution."

The accounts received from the mining section of the State continue to be as favorable as ever, and vast quantities of gold are shipped to the seaboard. The supply of water is generally more abundant this Spring than usual, owing to the extraordinary amount of snow lying on the mountains. The quartz mills in the central counties are doing better than ever. The cumbersome machinery in use at first is rapidly being supplanted by that of a more suitable character, and there also appears to be much more system in the management of these quartz enterprises than formerly. Owing to the unprecedented height of the streams, the season will be far advanced before mining in the drained channels can be profitably or successfully carried on.

Agricultural prospects are not so encouraging as mining. Grains and fruits are far advanced, but the former are suffering much from the drought which prevails all over the State. In some portions of the Southern border counties the wheat and oat crops are already nearly ruined; and even in Yolo, and other adjacent counties, the farmers are bitterly complaining, and foreboding the entire destruction of their cereal products. There is no doubt that the injuries from this cause are overrated, but if no rain falls speedily, an incalculable amount of damage is inevitable. Much more attention than ever before has been paid during the last season to the growing of fruit trees, and the prospects are flattering for a large yield.

The people in the northern section of the State are holding meetings and conventions, and it is probable that several good wagon roads will be constructed to and across the Sierra Nevada, for the purpose of uniting with the termini of the roads provided for by Congress, and of thus bringing in the immigration to California. There is a great degree of enterprise and determination exhibited by the people of the different counties on this subject.

The schools of San Francisco have held their annual examinations during the week, and closed for the term. It is expected that, under the effect of the late amendments to the Consolidation bill, the schools will soon be in a flourishing condition, although they have labored under considerable embarrassment during the last few months.

News from Oregon.

APPREHENSIONS OF ANOTHER INDIAN OUTBREAK.

The news from Oregon indicates that the Indians are again becoming restless, and threaten hostilities.

Considerable anxiety is felt at the mouth of the Umpqua about the Indians upon the Coast Reserve. They are quite discontented, and threaten to return to their homes on the Klamath and Rogue River. Capt. STUART is prepared, as far as possible, to intercept their southard march, and prevent their crossing the river; but it is feared the small force of sixty men, under his command, will not be sufficient. The Indians number at least 500 warriors; and according to the best accounts, one third of them are well armed. They comprise the fiercest of the southern band. It has cost two bloody and expensive wars to get them under. It would be a dreadful calamity to Southern Oregon should they get back. The mountains along the coast are filled with detached parties of prospectors and miners, following out the gold discoveries of the Six and Coquille Rivers completely at the mercy of these revengeful devils, should they return; and that they will return, or at least, make the attempt, is the settled opinion of those who are at present here.

Important from Salt Lake City.

BRIGHAM YOUNG BESIEGED IN HIS OWN HOUSE.

From the Osiaquia (Kansas) Herald.

Yesterday (Sunday) morning, 19th inst., Mr. THOMPSON, the driving and intrepid Carson Valley Express man, arrived in Mosquitoe Hill, at Murphy's and the Big Tree Road, from Green Valley. He left Eagle Ranch on the morning of the 16th, and was four days in reaching Murphy's, having lost his way directly after striking the head waters of the Mosquitoes. The reflection of light from the encrusted snow rendered him blind, and that was the cause of his losing his way.

He reports the snow on the mountains from four to six feet deep, from Hope Valley to the Big Meadows; and thinks this is three feet less than is now on the Johnson Cut-off. This is his first trip on the Big Tree Road, and he says it is by great odds the best natural road across the mountains.

By private letters, received from Salt Lake, Mr. THOMPSON learned that the schism in the Mormon Church has assumed a formidable character. The Gladdenites, or apostates from the Mormon faith as enunciated by BRIGHAM and his adherents, have of late wonderfully increased their number, and grown so rebellious that the Prophet is forced to surround himself with a trusty guard of the faithful. The letters state that his house is guarded night and day by his friends, and that, so bitter are his enemies against him, he is afraid to show himself in public. He has deserted the Tabernacle. Mr. THOMPSON does not confirm the rumor of his flight.

The Mormons of Carson Valley, on account of difficulties apprehended with their Gentile neighbors, had been peremptorily ordered to Salt Lake, by the Prophet, but thinking it easier to negotiate a peace than to sacrifice their homes, they have shaken hands with the Ansdalites, and buried the tomahawk.

The Crabb Expedition to Sonora.

Correspondence of the San Francisco Herald.

FORT YUMA, Cal., Wednesday, April 15, 1857.

EDITOR OF THE SAN FRANCISCO HERALD: Our news with regard to CRABB's party is rather conflicting. It seems to be pretty generally settled, however, that, after a very severe march over the desert, they reached Sonoita, losing one wagon, much baggage and many animals, and with much suffering on the part of the men. They missed the wells, and only found them by the aid of a Mexican whom they met on the road. At Sonoita they found provisions—especially flour—very scarce, but paid for all they took. Here, it is said, they received orders from FRAGUERA to garrison Altar, and hold it until they received reinforcements, when the independence of Sonora was to be declared. A special courier required CRABB to go to Hermosillo, to confer with FRAGUERA. The conflicting report is that FRAGUERA was en route, with five hundred men, to prevent the disembarkation of CRABB's reinforcements at Adair Bay. CRABB's party, finding that Altar had been in some sort fortified, by building an adobe wall entirely around the town, leaving only one or two gates open for ingress or egress, made a diversion towards Cavorca, a smaller place, where, after a sharp fight, in which twelve Mexicans and ten of CRABB's party were killed, the latter retreated. This news came by an Indian runner, to the chief of the Papago Indians. The Americans at Tucson and the Arizona mines do not believe the report, but it is certain that Altar is so defended that it cannot be reduced without artillery, and CRABB has none, so he wisely declined the attack. Mr. BIXBY of the Arizona mine, has just informed me that the authorities of San Xavier were determined to oppose the filibusters to the bitter end.

I am afraid CRABB is too weak in men, and that his Mexican allies may throw him over on this account. However I may regret any accident or misfortune to my personal friends in the expedition, I can have no sympathy with a movement so unfortunate for our national reputation, unless it be treated. CRABB got several recruits in Sonoita, and will get more from the Purchase. Small parties go from here to join him every day. Yours, OBSERVER.

News from the Sandwich Islands.

STORMY MONTH—THE NEW GUANO ISLANDS—EARTHQUAKE—LOSS OF THE JOHN C. FREMONT.

We have dates from Honolulu to the 4th of April. The previous month had been one of storms. A schooner was being fitted out for a trip to newly discovered guano islands in the vicinity of the Sandwich Islands.

The severest earthquake ever yet known on the Island of Hawaii, occurred on the 24th of March, at 20 minutes past 12 M.

A child was recently born in Honolulu, with four legs, and four perfectly formed feet. The physicians think it will live.

The Commercial Advertiser, of March 19, says:

By the arrival yesterday of the schooner Mary Ann, from Fanning's Island, we have the particulars of the loss of the M. G. bark J. C. Fremont, bound from Puget Sound to Sydney, with 350,000 feet of lumber. The Fremont was lost on Christmas Island Nov. 21, and was owned by Morse, Hunnewell & Ellsworth, of San Francisco. Her cargo was owned by W. C. Talbot. She was under the command of Capt. JOHNSON, formerly in command of the L. P. Foster, which sailed yesterday. The vessel and cargo were a total loss, the wreck going to pieces in 24 hours.

Review of San Francisco Markets.

From the Alta, May 5.

The aspect of the market has not changed materially from what it was at the date of the last steamer's departure. The operations of the fashionable have been steady, though not very numerous, of an intermediate character, and for the most part trade has assumed a cheering appearance, from the fact that the demand has exceeded the supply. Light dollar notes in goods at the developed thickness. Of speculative movements there have been none of any moment. A feeling in Dollar and Sheetings, and the in Flour, have been the only features in this record worth mentioning. Prices of the goods from the second to the second have been very moderate indeed; to be sure there has been more doing than in the preceding fortnight, at the same time nothing that may be construed into application on the part of the jobbers for two or more consecutive days. As long as this lasts, and from appearances it seems likely to do so for some time to come, there will be slight improvement in the character of the business in this city. Rates for goods, in the face of the continued depression, have been kept up in a surprising degree. Some of the previously stocks have now sunk, and prices thereon are tending, and others again have gained strength, and the feeling on the part is undoubtedly confident. The speculation in Flour still keeps up, as we have expressed it, much to the delight in their ability to carry their speculations through successfully. The elements, as they generally do at this particular season, promise aid to the speculator, inasmuch as rain having ceased to fall for many days, it is feared that unlimited damage has been done to the grain crop throughout the State.

Freed till the agricultural district the accounts are gloomy in the extreme. Unless we have a fortnight of showers, it seems altogether likely that a great deal of destruction is inevitable, since the famous four expectation of last year, nothing in the way of domestic produce, at least, of noticeable amount has been shipped from this port until the present. The holders of Barley feeling that the stock on hand was of a nature to demonstrate to allow the unhandling of a paying figure, have at last ventured to relieve the market of some of it. A cargo of this article to New-York of 1,100 bags has been made, and more will probably be shipped. There seems good probability of a similar shipment to take place.

Money continues scarce, and commands from 2½@3 ⅌ cent, being regularly paid for loans on merchandise, with a wide margin of value at that. The reason for this we have explained, namely, the fact of foreign capital, speculators holding goods for a rise, and waiting for the country to exhaust present stocks, and want of confidence among the citizens in the banks as depositories for their money. It is beginning to impress itself more and more on the minds of the business men of the State that we must have a general banking law, before we can expectany permanent improvement on the present state of affairs.

IMPORTANT FROM NEW-GRANADA.

Dr. Caldwell's Expedition—Death of Lieut. Strain—American War Vessels in the Harbors of Aspinwall and Panama—Circular of the Government of Panama—Aspect of the Difficulty with the United States—Settlement of the Mackintosh Claim—Cession of Islands to England—Miscellaneous News, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

PANAMA, Wednesday, May 20, 1857.

I was left into several errors in my last letter, in speaking of Dr. CALDWELL's Expedition across the Isthmus from the Gulf of San Miguel on the Pacific, towards Caledonia Bay on the Atlantic. He did not extend the Chucunaque, but the Darien and Savana Rivers. The Chucunaque is a large, deep river, into which twenty other rivers fall, but a good portion of it runs nearly parallel with the coast; and it was by following it that Lieut. STRAIN suffered so much. Dr. CALDWELL ascended the Savana to Port Principe, where there is fifteen feet of fresh water at full tide. From thence he started in a northerly direction, having heard that there existed a comparatively level tract of land to the northward of the route taken by Captain PARVOER, of the Panama, in 1852. The first day after leaving Principe, Dr. C. crossed Captain PARVOER's track. This day he traveled about six miles from Principe, cutting his way frequently through the vines, palms and thorny bamboos. He calculated that within four or five miles from Principe he reached the summit between the Atlantic and Pacific, which he guessed, for he had no instruments, did not exceed 150 feet. Captain PARVOER's summit was about 250 feet. For the next three days he crossed a thinly wooded but almost level country, intersected with numerous streams, cutting his way frequently, as on the first day, through the dense undergrowth. On the fourth, by climbing a tree, the Atlantic was seen through a gap in the range of mountains, apparently at about ten miles distance. On the fifth day, at evening, the gap in the Atlantic range was distinctly visible from the top of a tree, the ocean being about six miles off. Having been out of water for 48 hours, the Doctor was obliged at this point to retrace his steps, and reached Principe on the eighth day after he left it. Mr. HOSMER, who resides at Chagres, writes to the Star here concerning Dr. CALDWELL's views in regard to the plain or table land. He says that he has often heard from the Indians that a portion of it was covered with water during the rainy season. Dr. CALDWELL estimates the whole distance from Principe to the Atlantic at 30 miles. Mr. CALDWELL thinks he has demonstrated three important facts: the great depression of the country across the track he traversed, the summit being, as I have stated, only 150 feet; the existence of a wide plain or table land, and a convenient gap through the Atlantic ocean range. He will go down again with instruments, if he can get a month's leave of absence. In the meantime he will urge in a letter to the Secretary of the Navy, the importance of a Government survey of the route.

In connection with this subject, I am pained to record the death of Lieut. STRAIN, U. S. N. He died, I believe, in a fit, at Aspinwall, on the evening of the arrival of the New-York steamer on the 14th. He came out to join the U. S. sloop-of-war Cyane at Aspinwall. Many readers of Harper's Magazine will recollect the interesting account of his expedition across the Isthmus of Darien in 1854.

Many Americans here are somewhat puzzled to know why seven or eight large ships of war are to be kept by the United States in the harbors of Aspinwall and Panama, when the news is accompanied by the announcement that no demonstrations of a hostile character are to be made. As the Isthmus cannot be blockaded, we have come to the conclusion that Uncle Sam is anxious to encourage gallivanting and agriculture among the natives, and for that purpose is going to send their additional customers for their beef, plantains and frijoles. It is rather an expensive way of doing the thing, however. Let us see. The United States claims from New Granada $500,000 for damages suffered by her citizens in the Panama affair. We have had three ships of war lying in these ports a year, in order to recover the money. Four more ships, making seven, are to be added to the fleet, which does is so lay here until the Congress at Washington can meet to enforce the payment of the money demanded. That will be another year. A fleet of seven vessels, with 3,500 men and officers cannot be maintained for less than $100,000 per month.

Seven ships at 15 months, at $100,000 per month	$1,500,000
Three ships which have laid here a year at $50,000 a month	450,000
Expense of Commissioners, etc. to Bogota	50,000
Time of Congress in discussing the matter	500,000
	$2,000,000
Cash claimed	500,000
Dead loss to the United States	$1,500,000

When we have got our money, we shall also have the satisfaction of knowing that we have not, in increasing it, made the Isthmus route one which more secure than it was on the 15th day of April. The people here don't care how much money the Government at Bogota pays. They feel about as much interest in the welfare of the National Treasury as they do in that of the Queen of the Feejee Islands. In fact, the Isthmus will really be benefited, pecuniarily, in the affair. Beef will take a rise, certainly, when the whole fleet arrives, and the scoundrels will stand a chance for new levers among the officers. It is a fact, that game has already commenced. It was only the other evening that the gunner of the Independence married one of the most beautiful girls of Panama. If the United States wishes to make this route safe, let the President demand the punishment of the criminals who murdered our people on the 15th of April, and who now walk as proudly through our streets.

That the Governor of Panama is highly pleased with the delightful assurances from Washington, may

IMPORTANT FROM SOUTH AMERICA.

Attack on Callao—Defeat of the Revolutionists—Assassination of the Secretary of the United States Consul—Movements of Vivanco—News from Chili and Bolivia, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

PANAMA, Wednesday, May 20, 1857.

By the British Mail steamship Lima we have Valparaiso dates to April 16, Callao and Lima to the 20th, Paita 22d, and Guayaquil to the 30th.

PERU.

VIVANCO has gone overboard. He has met the enemy and he is taken. Fate, which seemed to be in his favor for a short time, totally abandoned him at the critical period. The gods, or the gold condors of Chili, had the effect to bring Peruvian officers and Peruvian soldiers together in a good, square fight.

By last, you will recollect, left Castilla en route over mountainous desert from Lambayeque to Paita, with 1,500 men in pursuit of VIVANCO, who had reached the latter port ahead of him, and embarked on the Apurimac and Huascar with all his force in the North, consisting of some six or eight hundred men, to go to attack Callao and Lima. Before CASTILLA could reach there, on the morning of the 21st, VIVANCO cast anchor in the Bay of Callao, and immediately began his duties as preparations for landing. The population of the city were much excited, of course, and many fam. lies left the city. The National Guard were called to arms, and several companies held themselves in readiness to march. Barracks. At 11 o'clock at night, VIVANCO's men commenced to take to their boats, and the disembarkation was carried on until 3 o'clock in the morning without discovery.

At 5 o'clock 700 men had reached the shore, near the mouth of the river Rimac, and took up their line of march for the suburb of the Pescadores. Here they met a picket of 100 men, whom they put to flight after a few shots. These shots served to notify the people of what was going on, and also CASTILLA's steamer Chalaco in the bay, which sent immediately 100 men on the Malecon to protect the batteries planted here.

In the Pescadores VIVANCO's force divided, one portion taking the route through the Calles de Lima and Figueroa for the Plaza, and the other portion marching straight from the Pescadores for the same point. In the Calle del Sociego the divisions met, and proceeded to the Plaza of the Church. At this point it was decided that one division should march by the Calle de Lima to attack the Castle, while the other should attack the Arsenal and the batteries of the Marina," when the men from the Peruvian having reached that point, they were received by a heavy fire from both the north ea and National Guard, which forced them to fall back. This they did, connecting every inch of ground. They finally occupied the Hotel de Aranda, opposite the Hotel del Union, from which they kept up a fire here on the Government party as it advanced. The other division was encountered by three companies of the National Guard and some troops from the Castle, at the head of which was Gen. PLAZA, Commander of the Castle and Governor of Callao. Here a severe battle was fought, in which PLAZA was killed at the first fire; when his force retreated to some portion, occupying the Calle del Muelle, another the Calle de Bodegas, and another the little street that runs into the Calle de Vivero. Here the fighting was hotest.

In the meantime the marines of the Unzaldi and another portion of the National Guard kept up the attack on the two hotels, until a white flag was displayed, when both divisions of VIVANCO's force surrendered. The revolutionists lost General LOYZEA and his son, and Colonel ROMUSUM, killed. The whole of the 543 men landed are thus accounted for: Killed, 70; badly wounded, 48; wounded, 200; went over to the Government during the action, 35; one man only escaped by swimming off to a ship in the bay. The Government lost 40 killed and 80 badly wounded. The fighting lasted from 5 to 8 o'clock in the morning. Almost every street was filled with dead and wounded. The surrender from the foreign ships came on shore and afforded all the assistance in their power. The city did not suffer, with the exception of the two hotels, and but few robberies were committed. It is said, but little mercy was shown on either side. The number of killed on the Government side is not more than 100, but it probably amounted to 1,000. VIVANCO expected to have a talk with the revolutionary chief Apurimac to-day.

Estimates of the crops in Wilkes, The Accomac and Northampton have given an increase in the Corn, Oats and Hay, and higher prices were demanded, but sales were without to any extent. Beef cattle in market.

No Rice in store at Savannah. Cotton in active demand. Receipts of Sugar Boiled Grocery for the month, 1,000 hogsheads; total receipts, 2,500 of Molasses, 2,000 hogsheads. Exchanges closed firm at 7½@8. Although not quite free from yellow fever, Savannah is healthy.

BUENOS AYRES.

A correspondent from Buenos Ayres, writing on the 4th of April, says:

Contrary to all expectation, we got through the grand national contest on Sunday last with little blood and no loss of life. The Government party carried the day by a large majority, as every official influence was brought to bear on the point, and a large number of the Opposition, were not permitted to record their votes. The nomination of the future Governor still remains; and if the vote of the opposing party is carried out, by the appointment of Mitre or Alsina, we expect another revolution, led by no mean adventurer. With the present party there is no hope whatever of any settlement of the national difficulty; that question must be referred. Essential delay. It will be well if we can steer clear of a war with the interior provinces.

Fair Indians to the Northwest have made another successful incursion, carrying off 300 or 400 captives, and from 40,000 to 50,000 head of cattle. It has been asserted that they are in connivance with President Urquiza. We cannot say.

The report of a revolution in Santa Fé gains ground. To all appearance we are fast approaching new and serious troubles.

LOPEZ has been reelected President of the Republic of Paraguay, and accepted, but only for the modified term of three years.

The market at Buenos Ayres for articles of daily consumption had undergone no essential change during the month. Arrivals had been moderate, but quite equal to the demand, fully stocked as the market in general was. Holders were firm, and prices tolerable steady, with rather a downward tendency. A fair quantity of exports had been despatched during the month.

News from the British West Indies.

ANTI-SLAVE-TRADE DEMONSTRATIONS — CHINESE IMMIGRATION—MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

We have received files of Kingston, Jamaica papers to the 23d of May. No news of special interest.

The presence of the small-pox on board the Troop ship Wm. Hammond, which several days has been ordered into quarantine by the Health Officer, has caused some alarm to be felt in Kingston.

An Anti Slave demonstration had taken place in the parish of St. David.

The weather at Barbados had turned favorable for crop operations, which were proceeding at small's pace. During the first half of the previous fortnight calms prevailed, and the heat was trying, but latterly the wind had sprung up, and sugar making had become brisker.

From Trinidad the planters are said to be working easily. The heat was oppressive, and on the 19th ult., a smart shock of earthquake was felt. Produce was daily arriving at the wharves for shipment.

The Governor had been spending a few days in the district through which the proposed tramway was to run for the purpose of examining the state of the country. The yearly report of the Agent-General of Immigrants was considered satisfactory. The aggregate number was 5,663 to the 31st December last, since increased by the arrivals in the Adelaide, Eve and Sir George Seymour of 840 adults and 101 children. Of this number here, at the beginning of the year, 2,484 coolies were under the first indenture for five years, 924 having completed their first five years, had accepted the $50 bounty and indented for another like period; 896 had taken the $10 bounty and entered upon a year's indenture; 720 had taken out certificates of industrial residence; 667 were Chinese, and 202 children. The deaths of coolies during the year were 110, and the births 46. In 1856 the number who returned to India was 280, and the total of arrivals was 506 adults and 61 non adults. The Agent-General closes his report with the note, that upwards of 100 of the Chinese under indenture have applied to purchase the redemption of their remaining year of industrial residence—and that there is every reason to believe that on any future importation of those people more than two-thirds of the number would pay up their indentures at the expiration of the third year. So much for the success of John Chinaman in this field of labor.

Prison discipline was the order of the day in Antigua. The present system being considered faulty, the anxiety is to improve it. The education of the people was another prolific text. The Legislature was still in session.

In St. Lucia the want of medical men still continues to be as great a cause of lament, as the bad state of the roads is of complaint. The press deplores a grave misunderstanding between the authorities in England and those in the East Indies relative to the transport of emigrants; and before any addition to the laboring population can be expected many alterations have to be made in the terms of the ordinance applying to their introduction.

The intelligence from the other Islands is of no interest.

THE GREAT WEST.—THE ATTENTION OF all persons about emigrating to the West is directed to the city of Independence, on the Missouri River, where there is great and permanent field of industry for all trades, and especially millwrights, machinists, carpenters, blacksmiths, and wheelwrights; as the place is now at a standstill, and the business of the country is in a low advance from the fact of its being nearly the center of trade at a time when the country is rushing on, and at the same time being supplied by the trade carried by the new territory adjacent. The country is very healthy, climate fine, the whole region remarkably healthy, and offers great inducements to any trade to locate. Further information will be given on application to [illegible] Mail Steamship Illinois, from Aspinwall on the 16th inst., arrived also at this port yesterday. She brings later news from California, Oregon, the Sandwich Islands, Nicaragua, New-Granada, and the West Indies.

From Nicaragua we have full particulars of the brief engagement made in yesterday's issue that Gen. WALKER had abandoned Nicaragua and had surrendered to Capt. DAVIS of the United States steamship St. Mary's. The capitulation took place on the 18th of May, with the consent of the Costa Rican Commander, Gen. MORA, and on the next day WALKER, with 16 of his officers, embarked for Panama. The negotiations for the surrender of WALKER were opened by Commander DAVIS, who entered the camp of the Allies for that purpose. Our Panama correspondent, whose letter is published elsewhere, gives the official correspondence in relation to the matter. It will be found of the greatest interest. Gen. HANDY was one of the passengers by the Illinois to this port. From California we have no news of importance to report. The State Legislature adjourned sine die on the 30th of April. Among the bills passed by the session just closed were those relegating to the people the question of voting for or against a Convention to revise the Constitution and the Banking act. The Governor had signed the bill submitting directly to the people, at the next general election, the question of repudiation or assumption of the State indebtedness declared by the Supreme Court to have been unconstitutionally created. Mining intelligence is favorable, but agricultural prospects, owing to the drouth, are not so encouraging.

From Oregon we learn that there are indications of another Indian outbreak. Considerable anxiety was felt on the mouth of the Umpqua about the Indians upon the Coast Reserve who were reported to be restless and threatening hostilities.

We have a report from Great Salt Lake that the publication in the Mormon Church has assumed a [illegible] character. BRIGHAM YOUNG is said to have deserted the Tabernacle and remains shut up in his own house, guarded night and day by his friends. He is afraid to show himself in public.

Our advices from the Sandwich Islands are to the 6th of April, but they are unimportant. The month of March had been very stormy, and the loss of the bark J. C. Freeman is reported. A very severe earthquake shock was felt on the Island of Hawaii on the 24th of March.

A correspondent of the San Francisco Herald, writing from Fort Yuma, Cal., gives some particulars concerning the Crabb expeditionists, but our intelligence, received via Mexico City, is of a later date.

The difficulty between the United States and Mexico, according to the news by this mail, [illegible] no change. There is not the least indication of the course which President OJEDA intends to pursue. The Machintosh Claim is settled, it is reported, by the transfer of certain rights over the Island of Tobago, in the Bay of Panama, to Great Britain. Our correspondent, however, doubts the truth of this report.

The intelligence from Peru is of special importance. VIVANCO, the leader of the revolutionists, had made a demonstration against Callao. He was soon [illegible] under the impression that he [illegible], the people would at once rally to his standard. On the contrary, however, [illegible] and the revolution [illegible] on the 20

Three diplomatic appointments have been agreed upon, including MORRIS for the Hague, and WRIGHT of Indiana, for Berlin. X. Y. Z.

[FROM OUR REGULAR TELEGRAPHIC REPORTER.]

WASHINGTON, Thursday, May 28.

Mr. KEY, United-States Attorney for this District, informed the Circuit Court this morning that the Government does not desire to detain Mr. JENKINS, Consul to Navigators' Islands, in custody on the charge of piracy preferred against him by Dr. VAN CAMP, as the warrant for his arrest was obtained from a Justice of the Peace without consultation or advice from any officer of the Government or United States Courts, and besides, the evidence filed in the State Department by Dr. VAN CAMP did not sustain the charge of perjury. Mr. MAURY, counsel for Mr. JENKINS, asked for his immediate discharge, but Mr. BRADLEY, counsel for Dr. VAN CAMP, insisted that the Court should detain the prisoner until argument could be heard on an application for release under habeas corpus. The case will be taken up again to-morrow.

Mr. RUSH, to-day, received his commission and instructions as Minister to China. His appointment will be officially announced to-morrow.

LORD NAPIER's residence is the scene of extraordinary gayety to-night. It is brilliantly illuminated, and a grand supper and ball are being given in honor of the Queen's birthday. The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church.

CLEVELAND, Thursday, May 28.

SIXTH DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The report of the Committee on Education was taken up and considered.

SEVENTH DAY—MORNING SESSION.

Rev. Mr. BLACK, delegate from the General Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church of North America, was present and addressed the Assembly. He presented as the basis of correspondence with the General Assembly those resolutions which were rejected by his Synod when offered by the General Assembly of 1856.

He said the Reformed Presbyterian Church holds no communication with slaveholders, and hoped that the New School would yet occupy the same ground, but left it with that Church to decide.

The resolutions were referred to the Committee on Church Policy.

The Church Extension Committee's Report was read and accepted.

A sharp discussion took place, on the Synodical records of Mississippi, between Mr. MCLAIRE, of Mississippi, and Mr. MCLEAN, of New-York, occupying the remainder of the session.

Case of Consul Jenkins.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, May 27, 1857.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

YOU publish in this morning's paper, from your Washington correspondent, a detail of outrages alleged to have been committed upon the property of Mr. VAN CAMP, late United States Commercial Agent at Apia, Navigators' Islands.

Those acquainted with the true character of that unfortunate victim, now a modest claimant for reappointment, will derive considerable amusement from its perusal; and if this poor, innocent martyr to the unauthorized acts of his well-meaning successor, can make Government believe that he has been unjustly deprived of $200,000, and thereupon induce Congress to recompense him for this loss, he will have to be more successful in imposing upon their credulity than he has upon any one who has ever visited the Navigators' Islands, with the single exception of the most benevolent of confidence men, old Commodore MORRIS.

It was exceedingly indiscreet in "J." to bring before the public his friend VAN CAMP's official conduct at Apia—for the same is one of those which is not at all aided by light and truth, and the Records of the State Department will show charges against him of the most serious nature, and supported by the most ample proof, leaving no question as to the propriety of the course adopted by the State Department, in his prompt removal.

That Mr. VAN CAMP should avail himself of the perhaps injudicious course adopted by his successor in his honest endeavors to repair the wrongs committed by his predecessor, and thereupon endeavor to change his position before the Department from that of a distressed and unworthy servant into that of an unfortunate victim of official tyranny, will surprise no one acquainted with the numerous distinguished and varied professional abilities of Dr. AARON VAN CAMP.

If Mr. JENKINS will avail himself of the most ample testimony now at his disposition in the United States, he need give himself no anxiety lest his honest attempt to undo the illegal acts of his predecessor should be regarded by any same man as an act of piracy.

And if Government also thinks fit to avail itself of the proper testimony, it can in a manner very summary, determine whether any one individual or firm at the Navigators' Islands was ever, by any possible means, legally in possession of property worth $200,000. RED BEARD.

THE DOUBLE-HEADED POLICE.

Rugged Correspondence between Mayor Wood and the Governors—Ex-Captain Hart to Command a Squad of M. P.s at Seguine's Point—The Commissioners Impotent—Matsell gets returns from all the Wards, Carpenter from six—The Target Companies, &c., &c.

EX-Mayor HALL, of Brooklyn, called yesterday at the office of the Metropolitan Commissioners, and requested that twenty-five policemen might be sent to protect the State property at Seguine's Point. He said it would be actually necessary that such a force should be detailed and at once, as the feeling of the inhabitants about Seguine's Point was so strong in opposition to the establishment of a Quarantine in their neighborhood, that a further demonstration of violence would be made by them unless timely steps were taken to prevent it. The Commissioners considered the matter, and it is understood that they will to-day send to Staten Island the force asked for. Ex-Captain HART, of the Seventeenth Ward, probably to have command.

The trial of First Lieutenant WM. H. MARTIN was then had. Deputy CARPENTER, the complainant, testified in substance as already given in the TIMES. Decision was reserved until to-day, in accordance with the rules and regulations. Many private matters were then disposed of by the Commissioners, who adjourned without finally determining upon any new appointments.

Mayor WOOD seldom leaves his office now till towards night. His time is almost constantly occupied in devising ways and means to checkmate the new Commissioners and "Albany dictation," and he receives frequent visits from many of the party who sympathize with these efforts. The old Commissioners appear to have adjourned for the present. They have not yet tried Captains HOPKINS, DILKS, PORTER, or SPEIGHT, all of whom send returns to the new Commissioners, as well as to Mr. MATSELL, thus showing that it is not always impossible to serve two masters. Returns from every Ward were sent to Mr MATSELL's office yesterday, while from six they were sent to the office in White-street.

Officer BOWYER, who on Wednesday placed himself under orders of the new Commissioners, tendered his resignation as a member of the Department, yesterday. The following is his letter of resignation:

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OF POLICE,
NEW-YORK, May 28, 1857.

FREDERICK A. TALLMADGE, General Superintendent—Sir: Your communication of the 27th instant, notifying me that, by order of the Commissioners of the Metropolitan Police, I was directed to report myself duly at the office of the Deputy Superintendent of Police, forthwith, was not received until late in the afternoon of that day. Pursuant to the notification, I reported myself to you. Having been assigned to duty at the office of the Chief of Police since its organization, and having been a member of the Police Department for nearly a quarter of a century, during all which time I have obeyed, and, to the utmost of my capacity, aided in enforcing the laws of the State, believing that the oath of office required me to do so, and that the constitutionality of any law would be decided by the judiciary, if I remained in the Department, my action in this respect would not change. But, in conforming with a resolution formed some time since, I respectfully tender my resignation as one of the Police of this City.

Respectfully, your obedient servant,
ROBERT W. BOWYER.

Many of the Captains in favor of the old order of things, have taken advantage of his late general order to give Superintendent TALLMADGE a bit of their minds, as well as define their position. The old Sixth Ward stands steady in the old faith. Not a man has flinched, and all the force there seem united in their intention "to do their old duty." In conformity with their resolution, the names of the Captains who have refused to make their reports to Deputy CARPENTER will be submitted to the Commissioners to-day.

Several Democratic German fellow-citizens, indignant at the "State usurpation and Albany dictation," will hold a meeting at the Volks Garden, in the Bowery, next Tuesday evening, to give it expression. The Committee of Management for this occasion have invited Mayor WOOD to be present. We annex the letter of invitation and the Mayor's reply:

EXTRAORDINARY CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN MAYOR WOOD AND CERTAIN GERMAN CITIZENS.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, May 27, 1857.

SIR: You are invited to address a mass meeting of the German Citizens of New-York, to be held at the Volks Garden, No. 51 Bowery, on Tuesday, the 2d day of June, for the purpose of expressing their opinion in reference to the act of the Albany Legislature, wherein the rights of the people of this City have been assailed and the Constitution violated.

Respectfully your obedient servants,
WM. SCHURMER, M. D.,
J. A. PAPPEN,
DR. CHARLES WANZ,
BERNARD MYER,
GEORGE DESSOYE,
} Committee.
To Hon. FERNANDO WOOD.

NEW-YORK, Thursday, May 28, 1857.

GENTLEMEN: I am thankful for the invitation to address a mass meeting of my German fellow-citizens on Tuesday next, who thus propose to express their sentiments of the recent acts of the Legislature for this City. To peacefully assemble and demand a redress of grievances is a right which is guaranteed by the Constitution, and hence is inherent in our system of government. Upon this occasion it is not only a right but a duty for the people of New-York, irrespective of birth, class or party, to protest and denounce the gross usurpations which have been perpetrated by their tyrant masters at the State Capital. At no time have our interests been so shamefully and flagrantly violated as now. The immediate causes of the American Revolution were not near so great an infringement upon the liberties of the Colonies, as these measures which you meet to denounce are of the liberties of this metropolis. Had the same principles been incorporated into ministerial orders or decrees for the cities of Boston, New-York or Philadelphia, at any time within fifty years anterior to that war, American freedom and independence would have had a much earlier birth. Our Republican masters at Albany have issued mandates which their royal predecessors at St. James would not have dared to conceive; and as if this great and powerful City had, after a siege, been captured, it appears to have been given over for pillage and plunder to these Black Republican soldiers of fortune.

History furnishes a few similar cases, though none precisely parallel, where three-quarters of a million of brave, prosperous and happy people were subjugated by paper edicts, issued as laws by an unscrupulous cabal, whom chance gave control of a legislative majority. It is to express honest indignation at wrongs like these that you are called upon to assemble, and I doubt not that the united voice of so large and influential class of citizens will and must be heard. I regret, however, that it will be impossible for me to accept your kind invitation to be present and to address the meeting. Since my incumbency of this office, I have avoided attending public meetings of any kind, and have made it an inflexible rule not to participate in the proceedings of any which, in their character, have a political or party bearing. You will excuse me, therefore, from attending at this time, though sympathizing deeply with the object you have in view. Very respectfully,
FERNANDO WOOD.
To Messrs. SCHURMER, PAPPEN, MYER, WANTZ, and DESSOYE.

THE COUNCILMEN ON THE STATE OF THE CITY.

The Councilmen last evening, after discussing the state of the streets, went into Committee of the whole, and took up the ordinance for the establishment of a Day and Night Watch.

An amendment was made on the third Section, to the effect that the consent of the Common Council should be necessary to the alteration of the rules.

Councilman JONES spoke at length upon the late State legislation for the City.

Councilman HASWELL moved a reconsideration of an amendment which had been discussed regarding appointments to office. He moved that hereafter the Sergeants of Police be appointed by the Mayor. Carried.

The question then came under discussion as to salaries of police officers, equalizing them with the amount paid on January 1, 1857. Carried.

The question of the adoption of the ordinance was lost, for want of a constitutional majority. The vote was 24 to 14. It was reconsidered and laid on the table.

The Board then agreed to meet after the adjournment on Friday night—i. e., next day.

Councilman WARNER demanded the call of the house. Councilman MORRIS moved that members who had left should be placed under arrest. The motion, after some discussion, was lost. Councilman HASWELL then moved that streets below Sixty-fifth street be declared open. The matter was referred to the Committee on Roads. After which, the Board adjourned to the next evening at 6 o'clock.

POSITION OF THE TARGET COMPANIES.—Alderman WILSON's Volunteer Army of Citizen Soldiers to sustain Mayor WOOD, and protect the chartered rights of the City, does not recruit its ranks as fast as it might—for after having existed a week not more than ninety-seven of the thousands who paraded in April, have enlisted under the Alderman's banner. He is not considered exactly the right kind of a man by them, and it was because of his connection with the late parade as an officer, that a split in the ranks occurred in April.

Alderman WILSON's operations are looked upon by the Captains of the Target Companies generally, as merely for political effect, and the members of the staff resolved, at a late meeting, that however much they, as citizens, may be opposed to the laws of the late Legislature, as Captains of military companies composed of men of all parties, they could not countenance any such organization as Alderman WILSON is desirous of forming. A meeting of the officers of the late parade will be held on Monday evening next, and besides the Captains of the regular body that turned out in April, those of the independent corps that paraded at that time, will be on hand to express their sentiments in opposition to turning the Volunteer Corps into a political body.

ABOUT STREET-CLEANING.

The Contracts for Thirteen Wards Annulled

The City Inspector is getting his hands full. Day before yesterday he served a notice on contractors for cleaning thirteen wards of the City, to wit: First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Seventeenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-second Wards—to the effect that if they did not put their wards in order before twenty-four hours expired, their contracts would be annulled.

The "twenty-four hours" ended yesterday, and as not a single contractor complied with the notice, Mr. MORTON yesterday afternoon declared their contracts annulled. None of the contractors have been paid a dollar for their past three weeks' work; all they have been paid for was the five weeks time—not work—that passed after the contracts were awarded, and before the official demise of Mr. ENLOWE.

To-day Mr. MORTON undertakes the cleaning of the streets of the wards named above. He begins with the First Ward. The Mayor has approved of the course taken, and Mr. FLAGG promises to pay his laborers, and carts are promised immediately in the remaining wards to cart away the accumulated ashes and garbage.

To Mr. REYNOLDS, who has the contracts for the Seventh, Tenth, Eleventh, Thirteenth, Sixteenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth and Twenty-first Wards, an "extension of time" has been granted. Nothing has been paid to him either, during the last three weeks. Most of the men employed under the different contractors have filed their claims for arrearages with the Comptroller, to the amount of $11,000.

The Board of Councilmen on the Streets.

The Board of Councilmen met yesterday afternoon, the President, J. N. PHILLIPS, Esq., in the chair.

STATE OF THE STREETS.

Whereas, the streets of this city are in a very dirty and filthy condition, in consequence of dirt, garbage, ashes, &c., thereby endangering the health and lives of our fellow-citizens, and which will no doubt lead to pestilence and disease, during the coming warm weather; therefore,

Be it Resolved, That the contracts entered into by the Mayor, Comptroller and Commissioners of Streets and Lamps be and the same are hereby annulled.

And be it further resolved, That the City Inspector be and hereby is directed, under his own supervision to have the streets cleaned forthwith.

question being put, Councilman WARNER commenced a violent philippic upon Councilman OTTERSON, alleging that he had misrepresented him in "his paper"—alluding to the Tribune. He opposed the reference of the resolution, and after the manifestation of strong personal feeling against that gentleman, was called by him to order. He asked that the words of Councilman WARNER might be taken down, wherein he had charged him with "uttering that which he knew to be false."

Councilman WARNER repeated his charges.

Councilman OTTERSON replied, somewhat warmly, stating that Councilman WARNER "lied," [sensation] and again demanding the words to be taken down.

The President's hammer at length silenced both parties, and the altercation subsided.

The resolution was referred to the Special Committee on Cleaning Streets.

Prize Essay on Slavery.

The undersigned, appointed a Committee to award a premium of $100, offered by a benevolent individual, for the best essay on the subject of Slavery, "adapted to receive the approbation of Evangelical Christians generally," have had under examination more than 40 competing manuscripts, a large number of them written with much ability. They have decided to award the prize to the author of the essay entitled, "The Error and the Duty in regard to Slavery," whom they find on opening the accompanying envelop to be Rev. R. B. THURSTON, of Chicopee Falls, Mass.

They would also commend to the attention of the public two of the remaining tracts, selected by the individual who offered the prize, and for which he and others interested have given a prize of $100 each. One of these is entitled, "Friendly Letters to a Christian Slaveholder," by Rev. A. C. BALDWIN, of Durham, Conn.; the other, "Is American Slavery an Institution which Christianity Sanctions, and will Perpetuate?" by Rev. TIMOTHY WILLISTON, of Strongsville, Ohio.

ASA D. SMITH,
MARK HOPKINS,
THEODORE FRELINGHUYSEN.

P. S.—The remaining manuscripts are in the hands of Mr. A. S. BARNES, No. 51 John-street, New-York, who will dispose of them according to the direction of their respective owners.

PITTSBURGH, FORT WAYNE AND CHICAGO RAILROAD COMPANY.
MORTGAGE BONDS CONVERTIBLE,
$4,000,000 FOR CONSTRUCTION, $6,000,000 FOR REDEMPTION OF FUNDED DEBT.
Date, January 1, 1857. Principal payable January 1, 1907.
Interest six per cent, payable July 1 and January 1,
PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST PAYABLE IN NEW-YORK.
To provide means for the immediate completion and full equipment of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad, a distance of 468 miles, as well as to make timely provision for the redemption of the Funded Debt of the Ohio and Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana, and Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad Companies, maturing on and after Sept. 1, 1861, and July 1, 1862, the PITTSBURGH, FORT WAYNE AND CHICAGO RAILROAD COMPANY, into which these three Companies were merged, for consolidation, August 1, 1856, has authorized the issue of TEN THOUSAND BONDS, of which 2,000 of $1,000 each are known as Convertible Bonds, and 4,000 of $1,000 each are issued as Redemption Bonds, and secured by a MORTGAGE IN TRUST TO JOHN FERGUSON and THOMAS H. WALKER, of the City of New-York, and JOHN D. CAMPBELL, of the City of Chicago, without the Delaware River, and Allegheny River at Pittsburgh, and Lake Michigan at Fort Wayne and intermediate points.
The Company feels still sanguine that the control of the Treasury will be found only from time to time, as the means of the road may be required to be sold to meet the payment of such debts as to your Committee appear the most advantageous, and their attention is now directed to the Convertible Bonds, which, if they can be disposed of, will place the Company and themselves beyond such emergency.
The Convertible Bonds are offered for sale to provide means for the road between Plymouth and Chicago, including Locomotives, Rolling Machinery, Engine Houses, Shops, Station Houses, &c., the estimates for all of which are given below.
The Capital Stock of the Company is fixed at $16,000,000. The present cost of the Road is about 12,000,000
The Funded Debt is nearly 6,000,000
The Floating Debt is nearly on the Road is 6,000,000
Leaving a Subscription, from the 1st of August, 1856, to date of this Report, which shows that there have been over $1,300,000. The Road cannot further fail to earn at a rate of over 7 per cent on the entire cost of the Road. They are the earnings of an unfinished and but partially balanced and equipped road.
The earnings for 1857 are estimated at $2,000,000.
The Road is operated for 222 miles, from Pittsburg to Plymouth, Indiana, where its business passes to and from Chicago over another more circuitous route of different gauge.
The 66 miles between Plymouth and Chicago are in progress of construction, and far advanced toward completion. Four thousand tons of American Iron are purchased. 40 miles of track can be laid this season, and the whole work completed to Chicago within twelve months; after which the earnings will increase, as is believed, with the development of the business of the road, to a permanent income of $4,000,000 per annum.
The guarantees of this result are believed to exist in these facts:
1. The road has immense resources for local traffic in passengers and freight. It connects by the shortest line Pittsburg and Chicago, and passes through 24 counties and 16 county towns. (Gazetteer the terminal) the valuation of which, in 1856 for taxes, purposes of levy, exceeded $150,000,000—the counties embracing some of the most developed and more populous sections in Ohio and Indiana, and the towns being among the most important centres of trade between Pittsburg and Chicago.
2. The road has over 25 lateral railway connections, bringing it in communication with the whole Western Railroad system—making it a thoroughfare conducting the travel and trade of a state over twelve and large portions of its limits from Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Terre Haute, and Pittsburg to Indianapolis, St. Louis, Cincinnati, &c. A reference to a map will more fully illustrate this point.
3. The Road is a single line, without branches, and the shortest contiguous Railroad in the United States, and for its whole length of 468 miles, part of a direct through route, in connection with the Pennsylvania Railroad of 354 miles from Philadelphia to Pittsburg, and of 900 miles from New-York to Chicago, via Philadelphia, and on completion of the Allegheny Road in Pennsylvania, of 635 miles only from New-York to Chicago, thus saving from 150 to 17 miles in distance of Philadelphia, and from 80 to 100 miles in distance of Baltimore, with the great routes through Pennsylvania, and the Baltimore and Ohio, and the Central Ohio lines from Baltimore and Ohio, and the Central Ohio lines from Baltimore and Ohio, and the Central Ohio lines from

Common Pleas—Circuit—Nos. 2760, 2766, 752, 1029, [illegible]

UNITED STATES COURT—TUESDAY, MAY 26.

Before Judge Betts.

At the sitting of the Court, this morning, the four sailors, John Smith, John Neale, John Brown and John De Costa, against whom the Jury yesterday brought in a verdict of manslaughter, for killing Seth Jackson, of the brig General Pierce, were put on trial under a second indictment, charging them with the murder of Charles Groves, a colored man, mate of the said vessel. The first witness was John Rose, who was stabbing Groves, and the other prisoners were with striking the blow, and throwing him into the sea. Four seamen were sworn, when the trial was postponed, the case was adjourned to Friday, at 10 o'clock, by which time the Marshal was directed to have a new panel summoned.

TRIAL FOR MURDER AND ACCIDENTAL.

The following Jury were impanelled:

A witness, named Alexander, was called to a witness and said: I was a stevedore; I was on board the ship Mary E. Parish, on her voyage from New-Orleans to Liverpool; Stephens was second mate of the ship; he was mate; Ross was one of the crew; I saw him when we were about five days out from the Balize; my bin on the forecastle head about five o'clock P. M.; I was coming from the galley with my tea in a tin pot; the vessel was a very long vessel, of about two thousand tons; I don't know what her name was; I was about three fathom from Ross; it was a bright day and a light breeze; the vessel was sailing by the wind; we were ordered by the second mate to go to supper at half past five; that order had been given; I was the only one on deck except the boy at the wheel, named John Watts; he had a broom in his hand; he was about thirteen years old—a thin boy—the second mate was near him, and I heard him say "You G—d d—d son of a b—h, I'll knock you down," and then struck him on the head with an iron belaying pin and knocked him down, and then kicked him; I was standing with one foot in the house and one out; I saw it distinctly; he struck him but once; he fell at once; I heard Ross say nothing, but he scuffled, like, on the deck, and then the prisoner kicked him in the stomach; I then went in and took my tea; when I came out again I could not see Ross; never saw him after; the prisoner came to the forecastle door and asked for Ross; he was answered that he was not there; he said he was looking for him; we all turned out to look for him; the second mate went round on the starboard side and came back on the port side with a dark lantern; I heard him say nothing; it was his watch; he was singing out for the boy under the forecastle head; he called him by name, but I can't say what name he gave him; the search lasted about an hour; did not search for him except on deck; there was no place where he could go but there; it was dark when the prisoner came asking for the boy; the sun was up when I went into the forecastle place, and it was twenty minutes or half an hour after when Stephens came to ask for Ross; we had the decks to clean up after we were ordered to go to supper; I had swept and stayed on deck repairing my tea after the cook had gone to supper; could not say how long it took; then I went to get my tea and got my tea and went into the house; it was then past dusk; we were there twenty minutes or an hour; Ross was in prisoner's watch; I went into the forecastle about 6 o'clock; we were ordered to go to supper at half past five; I was fixing my foot; I can't say how long it took; I stayed on deck a few minutes after I had done with my foot; I can't say how long; I can't say what makes me think it was half six; the sun was not up then; all hands went to get at once; it was all hands on deck that day, to clear up the ship I believe.

Cross-examined by Mr. Spencer—I don't know of any difficulty between Stephens and Ross before; I did not call the Captain when we were searching for Ross about the knocking down; I told the chief mate about it three days before we got to Liverpool; I did not mention it before the Commissioners that I never told any one; it was more than a month before I told any one; I did not tell it because I was afraid of my life; was afraid the second mate would kill me; I was with his watch; Ross was not robbed before this; he was charged me with it; I did not talk about the fighting down with Watts; Watts was at the wheel; he was to be relieved at six; it was before six that I saw the boy knocked down; I did not see the carpenter and the second mate go in to supper; I made my complaint at Liverpool; I did not run away; I was kept by the American Consul; I have been ten days in the Tombs; Watts has been there too; I have seen him every day, but have never exchanged a word with him about it.

Re-examined—I was afraid of my life after I saw the boy knocked; have no feeling against Stephens; he always treated me well; I told the first policeman I met in Liverpool about it; he came next morning with the officer to the vessel; Watts and I did not talk together at Liverpool; a slung shot was not used.

John E. Watts sworn.—I was on board the ship; Stephens was second mate; Ross was on board; he was a slight boy; I was in the mate's watch and was on the wheel from four to six P. M.; I think she was a very bright day and a light breeze; the vessel was sailing by the wind; we were ordered by the second mate to go to supper at half past five; that order had been given; I was the only one on deck except the man at the wheel, named John Watts; I had a broom in my hand; Ross was a very short
